Of The ILLENIUM

January of 1999 brought a world of preparation for the millennium among many Union students. Computer manufacturers everywhere raced to make sure that their companies and products were Y2K compatible and top of the line. Franticly people around the world also prepared for the millennium by stocking up on bottled water, kerosene, nonperishable food items, etc. Rather than worrying about all of the millennium hype and what would happen to us in the year 2000, Union strived to make its mark on the millennium.

Over the years Union has blown Jackson away with its awesome impact. Making their marks on the campus, freshmen and transfers ventured to Union in hopes of fulfilling their goals of life long success. Like these new students influencing our campus as they have, we all resolve to bombard this new millennium with our ideas and inspirations.

What ways did we as Unionites make this mark on our campus? Throwing ourselves into mission opportunities offered by this outstanding institution. Backyard Bible Clubs, GO Trips, Hands for Jesus, and Impact are only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to spreading God's word here at Union. Combining leadership and campus ministries, students encouraged and influenced newcomers through LIFE Groups and FOCUS Groups. While participating in any one of these organizations, students have truly made a mark in heaven by showing Christ's love.

In the year 2000, Union University students and faculty members involved themselves on campus and made their own Marks of the Millennium.

Magical Moments

Mary Mount

The college years are a special time in a person's life. Everything is full of changes and your life is in perpetual motion. But look around and you would see that even though your time was filled with classes and work, there was still time to get involved on campus and find interests outside of your homework that could add a little variety to your time at Union. These were magical moments full of fun and excitement. One of the greatest things about college life was the availability of extracurricular events that could Spice up an ordinary week and provide you with a good excuse to take a break from all your studying. Looking back on your college years, hopefully it will be these magical moments you remember and not all the cramming you did before tests.

att Waits, Stephen Dixon and Kevin Little. stood proudly by the Lambda Chi Alpha display. Later that day they went to cheer for the Bulldogs at the soccer game.

n a beautiful sunny day in October, church and school groups of high-school seniors interested in Union populated the campus for Union's annual Campus Day. Their gleaming eyes clearly portrayed their excitement.

The day sparkled with excitement and pleasure as prospective students saw what Union had to offer. Organizational displays showed the many activities and clubs in which students could participate while at Union. A baseball tournament and a soccer game gave Union a chance to show its athletic side and the mighty perseverance that comes with being a Bulldog.

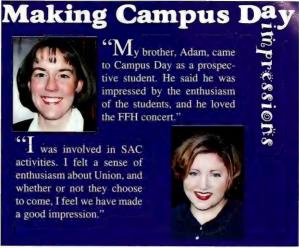

Prospective students were also able to meet current students and obtain information about Union that their enrollment counselor probably wouldn't ever tell

After the games were over, students drooled over the numerous selections offered at the food fare. They chattered noisily about the day, listened to the energetic music of one of many Union nurtured bands, Envoy, and waited eagerly to see the Christian band FFH (Far From Home) perform. The day, though busy, was a great success. Union once again proved that is a wonderful place to be. Shelley Camardese & Rachel Smith nion University was graced by the presence of an American hero Gen. Colin Powell, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, 1999.

Four hundred free student tickets were given away on a first-come, first-served basis, all of which were quickly absorbed into the student body. Why, one might wonder? The answer was simply found by exploring just who is Gen. Colin Powell.

Powell was born in 1937 in New York City. He received a bachelor of science degree in geology from City College of New York in 1958 and a MBA from George Washington University in 1971.

Powell's military career began when he joined the ROTC program while attending City College of New York. During his time in ROTC, Powell "learned being in charge means making tough decisions, no matter how unpleasant. If it's broke, fix it. You cannot let the mission suffer or make the majority pay to spare the feeling of an individual." After completing these courses, he was offered a regular Army commission and the lessons he earned were evident during the 30 years he served in the military.

Powell earned the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star awards during his service in Vietnam in 1963. He was selected as White House Fellow in 1972 and served as a presidential assistant for national security affairs between 1987 and 1989. Powell was honored with the position of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the highest ranking military position in the U.S. armed forces, and served in this role from 1989 to 1993. He was also responsible for the United States military effort against Iraq in 1990 and 1991. Powell retired from the military in September 1993. He recently received the 37th annual Thomas D. White National Defense Award from the United States Air Force Academy. This award recognizes a U.S. citizen for contributions to the national defense and security.

Powell has also placed an interest in organizations other than the military. He is chairman of "America's Promise – the Alliance for Youth." This Virginia-based group is trying to transform the nation's children into successful adults by providing role models, safe places and a healthy start in life.

Powell has accumulated a variety of interests and experiences through his service in the military and his involvement with America's youth. Union was given this once-in-a-lifetime chance to hear these stories firsthand on Nov. 11 at the Jackson Civic Center.

eth Moore was one of the most inspiring of all Union speakers this year.

eth Moore, one of the most respected women leaders in the Christian world, delivered a spirit-filled, passionate, and animated speech to a chapel packed with eager students and Christians from the community on Friday, Nov. 18, 1999. Her high energy and evident love for God kept students interested that morning. "What is God doing in your life right now, this moment, today?" she asked. "That will always be the most powerful testimony you have to tell because it is what you are currently sensing the abundant life of God through." To illustrate her point, she told about her daughter Amanda, a sophomore at Texas A&M University, who had called her early the previous morning. "Mom, the bonfire fell," Amanda said. In hysterics, she managed to communicate to her mother that the long-awaited homecoming bonfire at Texas A&M had fallen, killing 12 people and injuring somewhere around 27 people. She was leaving with some of her friends to go and pray at the site.

"The mountain came crashing into the sea," said Moore. She told about one boy that died who was described as having poured his whole life into building that bonfire. She explained that the things that consume our attention may be noble, but when it comes to life or death, we realize that the mountain we stood on can no longer carry us. Her voice almost broke with the amount of care that was in it when she asked, "What mountain are we standing on?"

She wanted us to have passion for God. "Our God is a consuming fire! He sets ablaze anything that he consumes." First, though, he has to consume us. If you pray for that kind of passion, and that nothing will ever compare to God in your life, you will be shaken, she warned. God will show you what mountain you need to be standing on.

"Is he your life? Not is he important in your life, because that will not save you when the mountains shake," she concluded. She prayed and dismissed the crowd. Through this chapel and an off-campus Union sponsored convention God used Beth Moore to change a lot of lives both on campus and in the community.

he Student Activities Council was very busy in 1999-2000. As always, their members worked extra hard to make sure Union students were not bored. They started the year off with a bang by organizing an exciting Polaroid scavenger hunt. Students formed groups of three or four and wildly searched the streets of Jackson for zany pictures such as the whole crew inside somebody else's bathtub. SAC kept the ball rolling with events such as the ever popular "Let's Make a Deal" and the Variety Show. They then made sure Christmas was a pleasant time for everyone with the Christmas Special event. For this, SAC brought children from the Carl Perkins Center for Abused Children to the school and gave different organizations and groups of people an opportunity to give them gifts and show them love. SAC also kept the students' spiritual walk in mind by organizing purposeful praise and worship nights for the students to praise God with fellow believers and also find answers to questions they have long wanted to ask. SAC definitely upheld its duty in 1999-2000 by making sure the students had plenty to do in their spare time.

nion University issued 195 degrees during its fall graduation ceremonies. December 1999, 156 students graduated in a ceremony on the Jackson campus, in the G. M. Savage Memorial Chapel. Thirty-nine students received their degrees in a commencement ceremony on the Germantown campus.

Morris H. Chapman, president of the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention, was the Jackson ceremony's commencement speaker. Chapman held a master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Seminary. In 1990, he was elected and served as president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and prior to this was the senior pastor of First Baptist in Wichita Falls, Texas.

Dr. Steve Arendall, director of the M.B.A. program at Germantown and professor of management at Union University, delivered the commencement address at the Germantown ceremony.

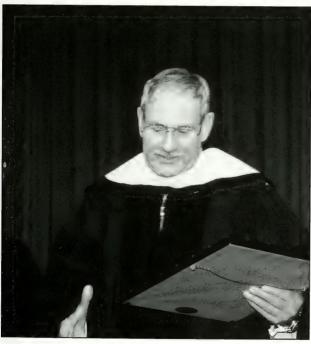

With the growing number of students who have graduated at Union, most have realized that it is time for the future. Stepping out of this university and experiencing for the first time the real hardships of life that face them. The one most important promise, that all have left here with, is that if we as Christians give all to God, God will guide and direct us just as his word says in Jeremiah 29:11.

A vacant cafeteria was exactly the site seen by the students that attended winter term. The few that did partake at the cafeteria had a blast with the Brazilian visitors.

Dr. Paul Jackson dedicated his winter term break to his students at Union. Many found him to be a very perceptive and excellent professor.

Irina Kaznina and Bridget Diggs creatively spent their winter breaks leading the Brazilian exchange students in some of the students' classes.

Priscilla Coelho was surprised by the amount work she was to complete during the term. As a Brazilian she was able to learn English and experience life in America.

Winter Term

Number 31! Your hamburger and fries are ready!" Amber Diggs shouted across the Lexington Inn. Down the hall in the student lounge, the sound of ping-pong balls and pool sticks clicked and clattered as Becca Smith and Mario Cobo enjoyed a stress free break from These unique scenes from Union's campus during January provided the perfect environment for new beginnings to form. The stranger and the international high schooler came together form new social circles.

The bright Lexington Inn sign gleamed as Jarred Rogers and his twin sister Jessica enjoyed a casual meal. Jarred and Jessica noted a lone student and quickly crossed the room to meet her. Many new relationships like this one formed at the tables on top of the red-checkered floor. Conversations in the 'Lex' began simply, concerning the Physical Science or Written Composition, but often turned to more serious issues like dating or new roommates.

Something unique to January term was the opportunity to meet numerous Brazilian high school students. An English as a second language (ESL) exchange program begun in 1995 gave students from Colegio Batista, Belo Horizonte, Brazil the chance to enhance their language abilities. Phillip Ryan, coordinator of the exchange program and an assistant professor at Union, said "The intensive English program focuses on conversational English through class, cultural activities, and interaction with ESL teachers and Union students. The exchange program provides a total learning environment for the student, which therefore increases their language skill." This relationship between Union and Brazilian students helped the Brazilian student to practice his/her English and also helped the Union student to broaden his/her worldview.

During January, students had more free time because class loads were lighter. Because many activities required two players, students often asked a stranger to play a challenging game of ping-pong or pool. Because of the new opportunities to meet new people, the unnoticed became noticed and another culture became a name and personality.

23 Magical Moments

Keeping with the theme "Back to the Future," this year's Variety Show exhibited many talented performers.

omecoming 2000 kicked off on Monday, Feb. 14, known more commonly to many as Valentine's Day. The sea of red clothing that typically accompanies this holiday continued throughout the week as students got more and more excited about the festivities. the first Homecoming games were The gladiator take place. On Tuesday, the Rocky Palmer Activity Center was packed with student teams competing in "Wayout, Wild and Wacky Homecoming Games."

Wednesday, students gathered in the student lounge for cups of coffee and music provided by Passion worship leader Jami Smith.

And what could a game be without a tailgate party? Preceding Thursday's basketball games, the Freshman Council sponsored a barbecue to feed and electrify the fans. From there, students went to watch the Bulldogs play Freed-Hardeman University. The stands were packed, but true to the name "stands," no one was sitting! After the excitement of the men's victory wore down to a merely deafening level, students moved on to a bonfire, also sponsored by the Freshman Council.

Friday night brought the Variety Show sponsored by SAC. Songs coinciding with the "Back to the Future" theme were performed by many different organizations, while the student body laughed hysterically at songs that they remembered as being popular in their childhood.

And, of course, the most important of all: the big game. School spirit was literally painted or the faces of the fans for the Saturday Homecoming game. Both the ladies' and men's teams won, the men squeezing into victory with a one point lead in the last moments of the game. It was a scene tha Union students would remember for many years.

The Millennial Ball served as the grand finale for a wonderful Homecoming week. The Fou Points Sheraton was overflowing with students, faculty and alumni. All in all, the week was a success and an unforgettable time for all.

Over 250 students and faculty members were dressed to the nines as they celebrated the millennium with good food and excellent music.

Autumn Alcott's face lit up with delight as she discussed the details of the evening with Kimberly Thornbury, dean of students.

The Millennial Ball, which was held on Feb. 19, at the Four Points Sheraton, concluded Union's Homecomeing festivities with a bang as the first Student Government Association sponsored off-campus, Union affiliated formal dance.

Though some Union students affectionately referred to the ball as the "Union Prom," SGA Treasurer Carla Rose remarked on the success of ticket sales. More than 250 tickets were purchased for the event, over half of the tickets available.

Rose and SGA Secretary Autumn Alcott led the masses in organizing the schoolwide ball. Alcott said, "Everyone pulled their weight and then some."

According to Rose, there were many steps to completing the project. Rose said that decorating, food selections and picture backdrops were the obvious tasks to be completed, but communicating with chefs, photographers and finding a "ball-like" atmosphere took the time of many committed SGA members.

SGA arranged for a string quartet, consisting of two violins, a cello and a viola, to play music for the beginning of the ball. A deejay saw the dance into its conclusion. The Homecoming Court began the evening with the first dance which was followed by a tightly packed dance floor. "It was so crowded that some people were almost dancing in the hallway," said junior Melissa Yau.

The dancing continued until the ball's conclusion at 1 a.m. "Our goal for the evening was for everyone on campus to come together as a campus and enjoy a grand finale for the Homecoming festivities," Alcott said.

ne dreadful events that pragued the life of John F. Kennedy Jr. painted an eerie backdrop for the tragic plane crash that killed him, his wife, Carolyn Bessette Kennedy, and her sister, Lauren Bessette. The bodies of the three victims were recovered July 21 by divers in the Atlantic about seven miles off Martha's Vineyard, where the Piper Saratoga II Kennedy was piloting crashed five days before. In the end, the nation and the world were left to mourn the loss of a man they came to know as a little boy, saluting the casket of his assassinated father, a boy who grew up to inherit the bittersweet Kennedy legacy.

An Overview of Events and Personalities of the Year

Deadly earthquakes rocked the globe from Mexico to Taiwan, killing more than 21,000 in the span of four months. The year's most catastrophic earthquake occurred August 17 in Turkey, where nearly 17,000 people perished. The earthquake in Turkey measured 7.6 on the Richter scale and was followed by several serious aftershocks, which destroyed thousands of buildings and left hundreds of thousands of people homeless and living in tent cities.

All 217 passengers on EgyptAir Flight 990 were killed in October when the Boeing 767 crashed into the Atlantic off the Massachusetts coast. As search crews recovered pieces of the airliner from the ocean floor, speculation mounted that relief pilot Gamil al-Batouty intentionally crashed the plane. Information collected from the flight data recorder revealed that Batouty had turned off the engines and deployed the speed brakes. Although U.S. investigators suspected that Batouty had a death wish, no suicide note or evidence of terrorism emerged.

After predictions of the Apocalypse spurred years of preparations and precautionary spending in excess of $500 billion worldwide, the year 2000 came without incident. Y2K brought only minor glitches despite concerns over a technologically triggered Doomsday. As celebration of the new year subsided, there was growing criticism of the media, the government and a multitude of entrepreneurs for their part in the Y2K hysteria. Also at issue was the question of the new millennium, with purists arguing that it was still a year away.

Charles Schulz bid a fond farewell to millions of fans all over the world in January when retiring the beloved "Peanuts" comic strip he had penned for more than 50 years. Increasingly poor health made retirement necessary for Schulz, who had several small strokes and was suffering from Parkinson's disease and colon cancer. At the end of its historic run, "Peanuts" appeared in 2,600 newspapers in 75 countries and 21 languages, making it the world's most widely read comic strip.

The New York Yankees put the finishing touches on their "Team of the Century" designation by sweeping the Atlanta Braves in the World Series in October. By beating the Braves, the Yankees claimed their second-straight world championship sweep and the team's 25th World Series win overall. The Yankees are the only team in baseball history to chart back-to-back sweeps in the World Series, having done it three times.

The U.S. women's soccer team battled for 120 minutes to a scoreless tie before defeating China, 5-4, on penalty kicks in the World Cup Final in July. The exciting win captured the heart of America, resulting in hero status for the team's 20 members and energizing women's sports overall. Additionally, the World Cup championship was credited for boosting soccer's marginal stature in the United States.

ABC's surprise hit "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" brought television full-circle from its infancy, when prime-time game shows were a mainstay. Hosted by TV's crafty quipster, Regis Philbin, the show became an instant phenomenon and gave ABC its first sweeps win in five years. The other major networks quickly followed suit with their own quiz-show clones, such as FOX's "Greed" and "Twenty One" on NBC.

In the highest scoring Sugar Bowl game ever played, top-ranked Florida State outlasted No.2 Virginia Tech, 46-29, to claim college football's National Championship in January. The Seminoles trailed the Hokies late in the third quarter before scoring 18 unanswered points for the win. Florida State ended the season with a perfect 12-0 record and became the first team to start and finish a season ranked No. 1 since the preseason ratings system began in 1950.

Mixing Up the Mundane

Mary Mount

Everyone who has ever set foot on a college campus knows that more is happening there than just classes. At Union there is always something exciting going on. A group of students hang out in the Lexington Inn. A LIFE Group meets around the fountain. The art students display their most recent works in the hallway of the PAC. And of course there is dorm life. Spending time with your roommates watching a movie or playing a game, going down to the Commons to see how many of your friends are there, studying at midnight for a biology test at eight in the morning—these are all essential parts of college life. There has to be a good mix between classes and activities or life would get pretty mundane. It might not seem like much, but these are the things that make college an exciting place.

Run, jump, skip and play. Why can't we have some more fun today? With little time and much to say, Union students portrayed to many the love of Christ.

d id you know that just two hours of your time once or twice a week could mean so much to a child?

The students who worked at Backyard Bible Clubs have learned that. They have also experienced first-hand how rewarding those hours can be.

"The purpose of Backyard Bible Clubs is to expose kids to the gospel and the heart of the gospel and to give them their need of attention. In Galatians 5:6 it says that 'the only thing that counts is faith working through love,' and through this ministry, we try to express that the best way we know how," Jay Ridenour, director of discipleship ministries, said.

Fall of 1999, groups of students went to the Parkway East apartment complexes on Monday afternoons and to the Parkview Courts apartment complexes on Thursday afternoons. The students led the children in games, songs, Bible studies, crafts and snacks during the weekly visits.

"One time there was a little girl there who wouldn't talk. I was giving piggy-back rides to the kids and I asked if she wanted a ride. She only nodded her head yes. When I gave her the ride, she really opened up and started laughing and talking. It was so touching to see that little girl smile and open up to me like that," freshman Abby Porter said.

About 20 to 30 kids attended on Mondays and 30 to 40 kids attended on Thursdays. "The kids really respond to us when we get on their level. It doesn't matter that there is a color difference or that we might have more than them money wise. We are there to love on them, and they realize that," Porter said.

"I came to Union mainly because of involvement in missions, and this was one way I could get involved. Going in and spending time with those kids who probably don't have that at home means so much. It benefits them to know that everyone is not doing bad stuff," freshman Andrea Roulette said.

"It is such a blessing to go," Monday leader, junior Dan Shackelford, said. "You think of it as putting your time in for them, but it really blesses you, too."

Students are learning how to express themselves through many different media of art with the help of various activities within the department. The Art Department offers a variety of majors including graphic design, sculpture, ceramics, drawing and painting. Currently there are about 40 majors and 10 minors.

This year the Art Department sponsored its third annual retreat to Pinson Mounds. At the retreat, students and teachers have a chance to fellowship and get to know one another better. "It is a time for artist to come together in a nonclassroom setting for discussion and relationship building," sophomore graphic design major Josh Wagner said. Also at the retreat, two musicians who travel with well known Christian bands came and shared about their lives, as well as Union alumni that talked about life in the real world. "They gave advice about what to do and what to be prepared for," Robyn Jones said. Also at the retreat they made environment paintings. This means they used various elements from nature to make art.

The gallery in the Art Department this year brought in many great artists. "The caliber of artists that we bring in are all very recognized and inspiring," Jones said. Union hosted artists such as Kate Hammett, Jim Veneman and Tom Douglas. Jones challenges students to come by the gallery, even without understanding the artwork. "God will use it to work in your lives. It might teach you something," she said.

Also, this year Art Union (Union's club for art majors and minors), has been commissioned to draw a mural at the Jimmy Carter children's hospital in Georgia. Art Union gathers in hopes of inspiring other art majors and doing service for the community. They also have various parties and fundraisers throughout the year.

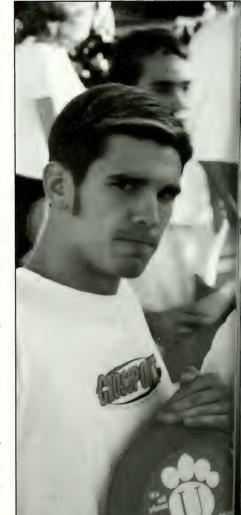

The Art department at Union is full of friends: "family" as Jones describes it. "You get honest critiquing-- it is not personal. They care about you and it is very inspiring. There is a Christian community in the Art Department-- it is family."

the definition of life

Dorm life. . . or my life livin' in a walk-in closet

ot much can be said about dorm life in general. We all had our different experiences, and they affected all of us in different ways. While moving in, most everyone could hear a nearly audible outcry of freedom from parental control. About two months into the first semester, however, when many bathrooms had still not been cleaned, one couldn't help but envision how lovely it would be to see a mother cleaning up instead of a roommate pouring ammonia on the bathroom floor.

Living in a dorm room with three or four other people has a way of teaching valuable lessons, even through the foot-deep filth. The first lesson might have been something so simple as not to eat things left in the refridgerator more than three weeks. The second could have been a little more substantial... something like learning to be understanding when a roommate has had a bad day and putting aside just a few moments of valuable study time to talk with her. Eventually, you might have found that you became a patient person, and you learned how to live with someone who was perhaps not so easy to live with. (This might come in handy if you're ever planning to get married.)

One student commented, "At first, I couldn't believe what a horrible situation I was in. I mean, I had prayed for good roommates all summer! But after a month or two, I realized that God was teaching me valuable lessons and disciplines through this situation. He promised that He wouldn't give me more than I can handle in His strength. And He hasn't. It's been a well hidden blessing."

Another student remarked, "Dorm life doesn't include just your roommates. Being on campus 24/7 gives me the chance to get to know some awesome people really well, that I probably wouldn't know as well if I lived off campus. I've met some incredible Christian people who totally encourage me in my walk with Christ. I get to see their examples, and they challenge me to grow into a more mature person and Christian."

The challenges and blessings that gathered in our memories while in the dorms taught us the importance of patience, compromise, service, tolerance, love, and friendship. The friendships that we made through our roommates and others helped to spur us on toward a better relationship with Christ. They provided accountability when there were difficult decisions to make, or when we were just struggling with something. Ecclesiastes 4:10 says, "If one falls down, his friend can help him up." This has proved true through the experiences of dorm life, through the bad times and the good; the friends that we have made will last forever.

Students in LIFE Groups made friends, memories and life changing choices. They were encouraged in their school work, skating skills and most importantly, their walk with Christ.

The purpose statement for the ministry states that "through the LIFE Group community, new students receive encouragement and support as they live the Christian life on a college campus."

This year there are more than 400 freshmen that have joined one of the 26 groups. Freshman Ashley Guinn is a member of one such group. "From the start we just clicked. It's been something I've completely loved. It is one of the highlights of being here at Union."

Yet there are also three LIFE Groups that specifically cater to the needs of transfer students. "From the perspective of a transfer student, the LIFE Groups ministry enabled and assisted the new students to meet other transfers and godly, Christian students on campus and valuable persons in the Campus Ministries office while introducing and accommodating one with a new campus, city and the new Union way of life," junior LIFE Group leader Taylor Worley said.

"LIFE Groups incorporate both fun activities and a spiritual emphasis," said sophomore LIFE Group leader Holly Shores. Each group meets weekly and participates in a variety of activities including going out to eat, roller skating, going on scavenger hunts around Jackson, playing games, going on road trips, or just hanging out.

In addition to activities, they also have Bible studies and accountability to one another's spiritual walk. Many groups are using the book, Who You Are When No One's Looking by Bill Hybels as a guide for discussion. "It is about becoming the person God wants you to be," sophomore LIFE Group leader Ross Parker says.

"I knew that my LIFE Group was somewhere God placed me so I could meet other people and get to know him better," Guinn said. "My group encourages me and my walk with Christ."

those magic Changes

What do bulldozers, video games and the Internet have in common? They are all just a small part of the many changes being made on campus.

s Unionites returned to their home campus, many quickly realized that changes have been made. Union University made progress toward completing the Campus Master Plan by adding Hammons Hall, a new bookstore, a student lounge with a patio, and new dorms.

The Hammons Hall dedication represented the first major accomplishment of the Campus Master Plan by housing additional classrooms, a testing center, Union offices and the LifeWay Christian Bookstore.

Since the old bookstore was replaced, the space is now being used as a student lounge with a patio. The new student lounge has become a major socialization area with Ping-Pong tables, pool tables, and arcade games.

The new dorms, K and L of the McAfee complex, were built to accommodate the growth of Union. These new dorms house 80 new students, which are typically reserved for upperclassmen and athletes.

The students of 2000 will never forget the attractions that they were watching take place right before their eyes. Construction across from Walker road was being built into Jennings Hall. This project was projected to be finished in August of 2000. Jennings Hall houses the Communication Arts, Music and Christian Studies departments.

You can also expect to see a new clock tower in the center of the campus to be finished by this summer.

And finally, students will have Internet access in every room of the dorms by August of 2000. Though our campus was continually changing, to over 2,000 students, this was and will always be the home away from home.

meet the Union family.

A Union student introduced Dr. James Huggins, chair of the Biology Department, to King because they share a love for creation and biology. The Union family along with Huggins had the chance to capture the essence of wild life for a short time this summer as Huggins baby-sat for four cougar cubs, just weeks old at the time.

While the cubs visited the Biology Department, students and faculty member observed and interacted with the cubs. "This was a chance for people to see more of God's creation," said Huggins. This was an opportunity for students to learn in a "classroom without wall."

Many students had the chance to experience these wild animals hands on. "It was a learning opportunity most would never have had outside of Union," said Huggins.

Union's American Chemical Society did more than play with chemicals. The 1998-1999 American Chemical Society chapter received the highest possible national award "Outstanding" by the ACS committee on education. The chapter is one of only 28 to receive this award and will be recognized officially at the 1999-2000 national meeting.

Cathie Scarbrough, senior chemistry major and ACS president, said judging was based on a number of categories. They included community service, National Chemistry Week activities, speakers, social functions, tours and field trips.

"The ACS has done well since its installment five years ago," Scarbrough said. That year the chapter earned a "commendable" rating. "It's exciting," she added. "I've been an ACS member for three years. We've worked really hard, and I think this award is well-deserved."

around the

International students have many exciting things happen in their lives. One of the most exciting was experiencing Union University firsthand.

ust as Union continues to grow and expand its reaches, the student body is also constantly changing. With an ever-increasing number of international students arriving on campus, Union has been finding new and exciting ways to help meet their needs. In 1999, the International Student Organization was formed to help these students become accustomed to American culture and to bridge the gap between Union's international and American students. The goal of this organization is to provide support, friendship, activities and a variety of opportunities for the students who are thousands of miles away from their home countries.

As part of the ISO's objectives, its members plan to get in touch with international students from Lambuth University in hopes of arranging and hosting a festival to celebrate a wide range of their cultures. They also plan to visit other cultural communities in the area, participate in chapels, host seminars about individual countries, and occasionally take fun field trips to experience different aspects of life in West Tennessee and the region.

With the formation of the ISO, many hope that students of all cultural backgrounds will be brought together to communicate and interact, sharing ideas and values that can form essential links throughout the world. "A lot is not known about cultures, and bad news sells. Our purpose is to educate people here about what is obtainable in our countries," says Patrick Whyte, president of the ISO. "There is a lot more to offer than the negative stereotypes."

In the first year of its existence, the International Student Organization has made tremendous progress in adding to the unity at Union. All the members have worked hard to make their organization successful, and now, it can truly be said that one can find the world in Union.

olunteering at an orphan age, helping out at a tennis tournament, repairing homes, tutoring children in school, spending time with the elderly, or even walking along the roads that Jesus traveled on. These activities may not seem like normal Spring Break experiences, but they were for those students who participated in GO trips.

In 2000, Campus Ministries sponsored eight different trips during the week of Spring Break, April 15-21, to various destinations around the world. They included:

- Chicago, Ill.
- ·Irving, Texas
- •Naples, Fla.
- •Phoenix, Ariz.
- Arlington, Texas
- •Hilton Head, S.C.
- •Israel
- •Honduras.

Another trip to Morocco was also taken in August 2000.

GO (Global Opportunity) trips provided students with the chance to give one week of their year in service to others and most importantly to the Lord. "GO trips are an excellent opportunity for God to open students' eyes to the spiritual and physical needs of people around the world," said junior Lauren Tucker who has attended two GO trips while at Union.

"GO trips are more rewarding than a Spring Break trip on the beach could ever be," Tucker said "God blessed me just as much, if not more, than the people I ministered to."

It is good for students to plan how they can make a difference in the world today. This year's theme, found in Psalm 108:3-5, was kept in mind. "I will praise you, O Lord, among the nations; I will sing of you among the peoples. For great is your love, higher than the heavens, your faithfulness reaches to the skies. Be exalted, O God, above the heavens, and let your glory be over all the earth."

the freshman ence

What did the freshmen learn their first week on campus? Never share your toothbrush and never pass up free food!

n one of many CLU classes, a wise woman gave a bit of advice to some freshmen. "The best advice I can give you is this: never pass up a piece of chocolate." Considering orientation for this year's freshman class included eating approximately every hour, this must be a well-known statement on Union's campus.

Orientation contained so much more than just food, however. The FOCUS shows, performed by the wonderful, talented, and usually insane FOCUS leaders, were some of the most memorable times of the first week of school. I think no one will forget the sickening feeling in the stomachs of those who watched the now infamous "toothbrush skit."

The classes were helpful, but most helpful of all was the "youth camp" experience that the first week provided. It allowed friendships to be made before classes even began. The upperclassmen on campus took the freshmen under their wings, challenged them in their faith and made them feel completely loved and accepted.

Even though the memories that each freshman has are different, everyone has some. Whether they are crazy memories or mushy memories, they will be remembered forever. The advice given that week may be forgotten even before the end of the first semester.

But everyone learned something, and that is, as a financially challenged college student, to never pass up a piece of chocolate.

We met at Rift Valley Academy in Kijabe, Kenya. I asked her out on our first date on the top of Mt. Kilimanjaro our junior year in high school. We have been best friends since eighth grade. This past summer Kara and I returned to Africa to visit our family and friends. Mr. Gillihan booked a night at a special game watch station called the Ark which is situated high in the Abedare Forest. This is a special place for us. The Ark is based on the biblical ark but instead of carrying animals, its purpose is to allow people to closely watch animals all night long. In the actual building there are three levels. On the second level there is an enclosed observation area with an eight-foot-long fireplace with a mounted rhino hanging just above it. While at the Ark on July 3 I asked Kara to take a walk with me, but shi replied that it was too cold. I had to basically drag her to the fireplace. I had been hiding the ring for months and was still so nervous to give it to her. After leading the question with typical innuendoes about how special she is an how we can expect wonderful things out of the future we sat down next to the fire. I was trying to act calm but m whole countinence was shivering. I almost asked her without the ring but caught myself and reached into my pocker brought out the ring, and asked her to be my wife.

Naturally it was planned for Dwayne to propose to me on Dec. 24, 1997, Christmas Eve night, in front of our families. When the proposal did not take place I became confused. Dwayne left with his family and the night was over, I thought. I was outside later on that night when I saw someone pull into our driveway and turn their headlights off. Because I have a long driveway, I could not make out the automobile. I ran back inside my house telling my family that someone was parked at the end of the driveway, not knowing that it was Dwayne. While I was inside, he made his way up the driveway and down to my horse barn. My sisters came to me telling me that I had one more present left waiting outside. They blindfolded me and walked me down to my barn. As I approached I heard our song playing. My sisters left me alone as I made my way up the ladder to the hayloft. There Dwayne was waiting for me. Nervously, he bowed down on one knee asking me to marry him. Of course I said yes. We have now been together for two years and four months. Our wedding date is planned for July 12, 2000.

farm, and behind our house we have a big pond surrounded with oak trees. When I stepped out on the back porch, I could see a table with candles on it. Eric met me with a single red rose and gave me a hug. He took me down to the table by the pond, and I could see that there were candles floating in the pond, on the ground, and all over the table. There were two champagne flutes and a bottle of sparkling cider. He sat me in a chair and then bent down and read me a poem that he had taken from an old English hymn (It will be printed in our wedding bulletin). After he read that, he poured the sparkling cider into the glasses and when I took mine, I could see the ring in the bottom of it. He took it out, knelt down on one knee and asked me to marry him. Of course I said yes, and it has been the best decision I have ever made. He is my soul mate and I am comforted knowing that I have someone who loves the Lord. We were married on June 10, 2000, in Illinois.

Buster the bulldog did not know what to think of this big stuffed bulldog that was a bit too large to be his friend.

the life of buster

What do cute, sweet, and drooling have in common?

They are all just a few of the many wonderful characteristics of Buster.

you saw him around the campus every once and a while and at most of the sporting events. He was known as the cutest, sweetest, smartest, and toughest guy on campus. He usually had a circle of girls around him, exclaiming at how cute he was. He was kind, easy to get along with, and a real gentleman. Sure, he drooled a lot. But no one really minded. After all, he was Union's thoroughbred bulldog mascot, Buster.

Buster was a gift to the school from the graduating class of 1998, and was a welcome addition to the family of Todd Brady, campus minister. Brady had many interesting things to say about Buster, ranging from compliments, funny stories and various tricks Buster could do. "My wife and I were recently married, and have slowly been adding more furniture to our house," Brady said, giving a detail that would be important to the story he was preparing to tell. He proceeded to say that he and his wife had added an island to their kitchen.

Being creatures of habit, bulldogs rely on their memory a great deal, Brady explained. Buster had walked directly into the island, not even noticing its presence until his chubby face collided with the foreign object.

Laughing, Brady continued to tell stories. "We bought a mat to go in front of the door that he uses to go outside," Brady chuckled, obviously recalling the memory. Buster had refused to step onto the obviously dangerous mat, barking repeatedly at it! "I was patting the mat, saying, 'It's okay, Buster.' But he just kept barking!" Brady said. Finally the dog had gathered up his courage, along with his rolls of flesh, and jumped over the mat to safety.

Buster, although temperamental in the slightest with other dogs, never presented any problem with all the people that unfailingly swarmed around him. He served as a wonderful mascot, always ready to encourage his fellow bulldogs to fight to the finish, even when the finish wasn't a win.

Union is a place of much diversity. No matter who you are or where you come from, there is surely a place for you to belong. Whether you are an international student from Africa or a local student from right here in Jackson, Union offers something special for everyone. Union people are unique and exciting. Some are athletes; some are actors. Some aspire to be doctors; some, teachers. At Union, students are encouraged to be individuals and to believe that everyone has something different to offer the campus. Because of this freedom, Union is an exciting place to grow and discover how you fit into this amazing mix of people.

Delivering a broadcast. Writing a breaking news story. Creating an advertisement. Starring in the Children's Play. What department offered these exciting opportunities and more? The Communication Arts Department was a vital part of the Union community, keeping the student body, faculty and staff informed an entertained. The department offered four majors: journalism, broadcasting, public relations/advertising, and theater. It also sponsored the Union University Players, the Cardinal & Cream student newspaper, the Lest b Forget yearbook, the Student Public Relations Society, and many other organizations in which students were able to be involved.

The Communication Arts Department provided not only knowledge of media professions, but the practical application to back it up, all in a fun and informative setting. Alumni success attests to the strides Communications Arts has made at Union. With enthusiastic and knowledgeable professors and activities to draw students in, the Communication Arts Department got students where they needed to go.

EDUCATION/HUMAN STUDIES

Sports are an exciting part of every campus, but Union's athletic department has a special mix of charisma and talent. Everywhere you look, there are people in motion. If the winning streaks of the spectacular basketball teams don't excite you, there is still soccer, tennis, cross-country, and a variety of other sports. You don't have to play sports to get involved; spectators are as important as the players are when it comes to team spirit. For those who enjoy playing sports but don't want to commit to one of the school teams, there are also intramural teams that compete heavily against on-campus rivals. Somewhere in the mix there is always an opportunity to put your muscles in motion.

Repeating la peason's NCCAA Mid-East Regional Championship at subsequent berth into the NCCAA National Tournament to be a primary goal for the Union Bulldog Soccer Squad in 1999. Ninety percent of the lineup that achieved the title will be returning this season as sophomores. Optimism for the team to achieve its goal of a Final Four appearance at the national tournament is high.

This year's squad has twelve new freshman including four national level players. Justin Thompson and Adrian Yeung will be joining the team fresh off a gold medal performance in the 1999 Canada Summer Games. Josue Tuchez and Josephat Phiri are expected to add some punch to the Bulldog offense. New faces in the defense include Yeung and Gordon Wilson. Union is adding a trio of goalkeepers including Jeff Lean, Brent Mortense, and Robert Ricket. Rounding out the very skillful freshman class includes Antoni Poul, Kolo Goshi, Jeremy Clements, Ben Bredow, and Michael Rose.

The returning sophomore class includes last seasons Gold Boot Winner Matt Gladle (13 goals in 15 games at forward); the hardest working Brazilian in college soccer, Cesar Cerdeira; NCCAA National All-Tournament Team selection Frithjof Wahn; team captains Dave DeLaughter and Scott Marksberry; Bulldog free kick specialist Daniel Banks; Mr. Versatile, Dan Walton; the always creative Shilo Velasquez; and super subs Matthew Jennings and Ben Hoskins. The Bulldogs will be looking for upper class leadership from last season's biggest assist producer Josh McCoy.

"Getting this very diverse and very talented group to come together as a team will be one of the greatest challenges we face next season. Once these guys get over that hump, college soccer had better watch out. This Union Bulldog squad will be a force to contend with for several years to come," states Coach White.

The Lady Dogs returned their entire starting lineup from the 1998 season and added two recruits to strengthen a team that was 34-13 on the year and qualified for the NCCAA National Volleyball tournament in only their first season of competition.

Union was led by the sister tandem of senior setter Melissa Hayden and sophomore outside hitter Lauren Hayden. The pair earned All-Conference, All-Region, and NCCAA All-American honors in their first season on Union's campus. Senior middle hitters Shanon Pollmann and Melisa Lovekamp repeated their outstanding junior seasons in which Pollmann was named All-Conference and Lovekamp earned a spot on the TranSouth All-Tournament team. Both of these Lady Bulldogs also earned honorable mention NCCAA All-American honors.

The 1999 recruiting class included two players that made a tremendous impact in their first season at Union. Freshman outside hitter Andrea Darr started while junior defensive specialist Sun Roesslein made her mark during valuable court time coming off the bench.

The 1999 campaign proved to be very exciting as the Lady Dogs faced tough competition both in the TranSouth Conference and outside TranSouth play. Union faced perennial Top 25 teams including Georgetown College, King College and Lee University as they pushed for a reg. pionship and berth into the 1999 NAIA National Championships in Fresno, California.

Putting her skill and proper technique to good use, Emily VanDam was ready and waiting to make the saving bump.

Sports MM 108

The Union University Cross Country Team prepared to enter its first season of collegiate competition with great expectations. The Lady Bulldogs were fortunate to have seven of the ladies on this years team already enrolled at Union. These seven expressed their interest in running cross country and began training. The TranSouth Conference is very tough competition in all sports, but Union knew they would give other teams a little tough competition themselves.

Union's first cross country meet named them the highest scoring NAIA team. Pride overflowed from these steady athletes. The 1999 Rhodes College Invitational proved Union the top team for NAIA schools. A second place finish at the TranSouth Conference in Nashville proved Union to be super competitive with schools of this same caliber. Here Coach Gary Johnson was named TranSouth Coach of the Year. Alexis Abney, a freshman from Winter Haven, Florida, was named to the 1999 Women's Cross Country All-TranSouth team and named as an All-Region XI Performer.

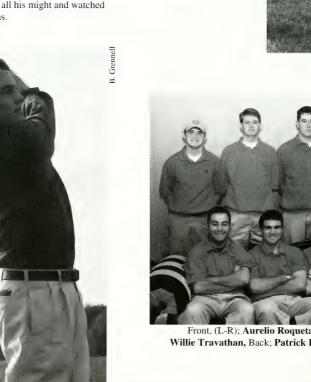

This first season of cross country track truly made its mark on Union's athletic history.

Solid seniors, great

The fall was a success. The team was ranked statistically by score at second and sixth in the nation at times. When the fall season ended, the team was ranked 23rd in the nation in the Coachs' Poll. The success of the Union team could be seen through the individual accomplishments of senior Aurelio Roqueta Vaquer and freshman Jeff Reuter.

Aurelio birdied the final three holes at the Darell Foreman/Delta State Tournament to take the individual title by one stroke. He beat out 40 players from Division I schools and 35 players from NAIA to take his title.

Jeff took a second place finish at the Union hosted Goodyear Tournament, in which many area schools took part. Seniors Timmy Wolfe, Willie Trevathan and Aurelio Vaquer used their great play to help Union to once again become nationally ranked. Sophomore Clark Short was the most talented player to come to Union in a several years. "The future is bright for the golf team with a new coach, solid seniors and great young players" said coach Dory.

Sarah Smith, determined to hit a successful return, kept her eyes fixed on the ball as she positioned every part of her body for the serve she faced.

With an expression of her energy all across her face, Clara Martinez showed her opponent who was the boss of the court that day.

Julie Yarbrough serves up another great play for the ladies' tennis team.

to being the best

With all but one player returning from the 1999 season, the 2000 season was very bright for the Lady Bulldogs tennis team. Being ranked number five in the nation, these ladies accepted the challenge of working extra hard to stay at the top and be the best team possible.

Once again, Clara Martinez from Castellion, Spain played at number one. Clara was ranked number eight in the nation. Everyone was awed last May at the NAIA Tournament when Clara secured her position as number eight out of 256 players before retiring due to unbearable cramps. The number two position was held for the past three seasons by Sian Olszewski. Sian was ranked number 36. She and Clara ranked number nine in the nation in doubles. Carolina Rodriguez missed most of the previous season due to injury, but she returned looking strong for the 2000 team. Sarah Smith was a very viable part of the team, not afraid to go to the net and fights to the end whether up or down in match. Winning crucial matches, Ashley Young had a fighter instinct and gave it all she had throughout her matches. Samantha Sloan, a supportive and hard working player, was a tremendous asset to the team with her readiness to get out there play. This talented and versatile team has always strived to be the best-ever Union University tennis team and to be all that the Lord wants them to be at all times.

Continuing the Reign of Success

The 1999-2000 men's tennis team overcame all limitations and added their own records to Union's sports history. This awesome group of guys achieved the highest ranking ever for Union's tennis program with a #6 National NAIA ranking.

During the fall season Mario Cobo and Jonathan Labella qualified for the Rolex Nationals by winning the regional tournament. The National competition led to a third place finish in doubles for these two. Cobo also finished third in singles matches nationally.

With all of these awards and others the spring season was welcomed with open arms as the team prepared to continue their reign of success. Spring Season opened on Friday February 18 with strong competition against Lambuth University. The schedule for this season included eight teams that are nationally ranked plus Division I NCAA teams. Coach Gary Johnson stated, "We feel like the best way to prepare for the national tournament is to play the caliber of teams that will be there when we get there." With all of this powerful competition the Bulldogs came through this season with shining success.

Spirit of the highest level

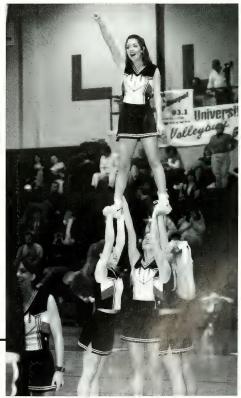

The 1999-2000 cheerleading squad was a necessity for the success of the Bulldog basketball season. The amount of energy poured out into every game delighted the enthusiastic crowds. A bond between these ladies was apparent as they spent quality time together at both home games and on the road. Although the faces changed during the season, the spirit remained on the highest level. Five new outstanding tumblers along with new stunts provided ample excitement and demonstrated agility unsurpassed by past Union squads. The average onlooker may never know the amount of skill and practice required to perform such feats of awesome ability. Pride and enthusiasm shown on every face of these bubbly ladies as they debuted their brand new stylish uniforms. Their support and caring encouragement was obvious when the cheerleaders took time out of their own lives during the summer to teach and direct the younger generation at chearleading camp. A rowdy crowd rewarded them for the hard work and dedication they put forth for the victory. Every fan rose to his feet with the sight of a cheerleader throwing a momentous basketball into the anxious audience. When the pressure of a game reached its greatest potential, this rambunctious group forced the team and the crowd onto a higher level of excitement.

Carefully, yet charismatically, the aggressive Bulldog cheerleaders provided the aroused fans with a high level of emotion.

Stumping the defense, Allison Harrison went up for a lay-up shot gaining two more point for the Lady Bulldogs.

First year head coach, Mark Campbell made the transition from coaching the men at Union to coaching the women. Campbell knows the tradition of the Lady Bulldogs and was determined to continue that level of excellence both on and off the playing floor. Response from the Lady Bulldogs was all positive, so fans saw that same level of exciting Lady Bulldog basketball. Each player has proven her commitment to excellence by sharing a common goal as mirrored in their team verse, 1 Corinthians 13:4-7, which emphasizes commitment as a team and to each other.

Union was led by an experienced group of seniors which included four players from the 1998 National Championship team. Celeste Gholston, a two-time All-American, led the Lady Dogs power on the inside, while Meg Griffin, a second-team All-Conference selection, controlled all action from the point. Three-point threat Lori Love continued nailing shots from the outside along with Leslie Henderson who is so versatile, she dominated both inside and out.

Carolyne Sagasi and April Pearson brought their own experience as National Champions to the floor their junior season. Both Sagasi and Pearson provided Union with great depth either in starting roles or from the bench. Pearson's quickness made her a fan favorite while Sagasi's rebounding ability helped Union dominate on the boards.

A large sophomore class bought their own share of valuable minutes to this year's team. Each one of these players has proven their leadership abilities at a young age through hard work and their competitive natures. Mary Catherine Way, Mary Beth Haltom, and Alisha Lehmkuhl posed a threat from the outside while Tonya Tuggles and Tammi Gauldin's strength on the inside frustrated Union's opponents.

Newcomers to the Lady Bulldogs all hailed from West Tennessee. Christal Taylor came from Jackson Central Merry where she earned a State Championship. Her quickness added to Pearson's made the Lady Dogs exciting to watch. Forces inside were Allison Harrison and Tashekia Brown. Their height combined with their athleticism made them tough to defend in the paint.

The Scoreboard says Success

With the most successful basketball season in school history under their belts, the Bulldogs had momentum heading into the 1999-2000 season. Although losing four seniors, Union was poised to make their third consecutive appearance in the NAIA National Tournament. Senior leadership combined with solid newcomers provided great strength for the Bulldogs during there journey back to Championship.

Six seniors led the Bulldogs on their run for a third consecutive TranSouth Conference Championship led by head coach Ralph Turner. This year's senior class included two All-Americans. TranSouth Player of the Year Tryrian Ridges was a powerhouse once again this year for much of Union's offensive play. Gaylon Moore, Union's extraordinary rebounding force and shot blocker led Union from inside the paint. Added to the mix were Demetrius Golden, Steve Poindexter and Ryan Massey from the outside making the Bulldog's senior class a strong force for Union.

The junior class consists of West Tennessee natives Anthony Brooks and Bubba Hoover. Both supplied even greater contributions than in the past. Brooks led Union in blocked shots and Hoover's accuracy from three-point range helped the Bulldogs return to the national tournament last year.

With no sophomores on the roster, Union's freshman class was asked to fill some larger roles. Two players came off a redshirt year, Jake Eaton and William Gray, both saw quality minutes at the wing positions. The addition of true freshmen Enelio Moreno, voted 1998 Columbian Player of the Year, Zach Wiggs, one of the top point guards in Alabama, and Michael Katrosh, certainly provided tremendous depth to the 1999-2000 Bulldogs.

Intensity shown all over his body depicted Gaylon Moore's pride as he jammed one more in for a couple where it counts...the score board.

Determined to grab the rebound, William Gray overcame the opponent in a high jump competition.

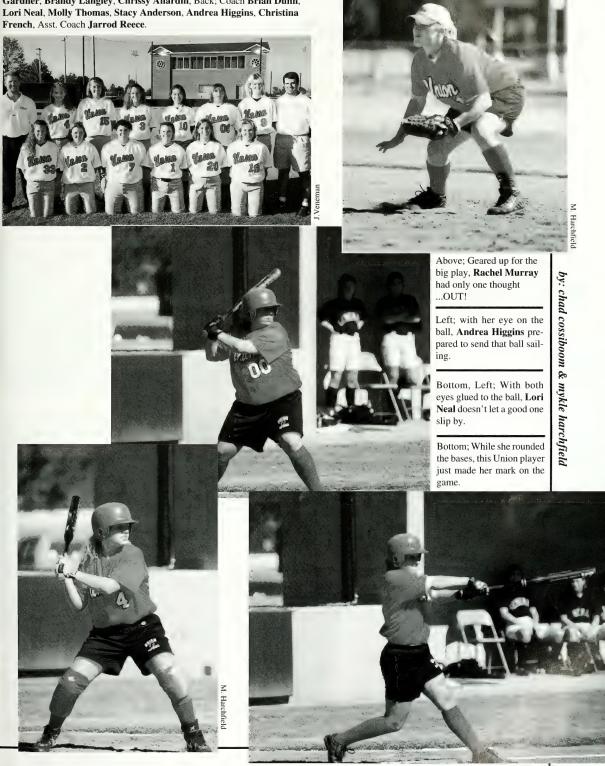

The Lady Dogs' goal for the 2000 season was to once again advance to the NAIA National Championship as they did in 1999. In order to accomplish this goal, Union hoped to attain a few championships along the way including the TranSouth Conference and Region XI. The pitching staff for 2000 was led by a young but experienced Rachel Murray, 1999's MidSouth Region Pitcher of the Year and Izzy Luna, an NAIA All-American Transfer. Monica Coe joined these two ladies in the pitching circle. Leading the infield were three returning players and two newcomers. Stacy Anderson returned at third base while Andrea Higgins returned to duties behind the plate and Izzy Luna was at short. Transfers Jennifer Sabourin and Michelle Gardner completed the infield positions. The Lady Dogs' outfield remained strong with returnees Lori Neal, Chrissy Allardin, Christina French, and Brandy Langley. Added to their talents were Molly Thomas and Sun Roesslein who transfered to Union

The Lady Dogs' outfield remained strong with returnees Lori Neal, Chrissy Allardin, Christina French, and Brandy Langley. Added to their talents were Molly Thomas and Sun Roesslein who transfered to Union assured the strength of Union's defense. The 2000 season held much promise for this squad with returning experience combined with new talent. Although their schedule held a lot of challenges especially with 24 opponents ranked in the Top 25 in 1999, Union was ready with unity, desire, and vicious competitiveness.

Looking into the Future

The Bulldogs depended on the 11 seniors during their 2000 season. All-Conference selections Mark Satterfield, and Bart Lindsey were the two lefthanders in the rotation. Kai Frederick and Sean Stewart were yet another strength on the Bulldog roster. John Melton, a catcher was a true power hitter. Senior first baseman, Dow Davidson, was needed for his ability to play anywhere on the infield. Eric Culpepper, a senior first baseman, was a key pinch hitter. Danny Giles, the second baseman, was drafted by the Colorado Rockies out of high school. Completing the starting roster for the Bulldogs were Alan Eubanks in left, hitting over .300 in 1999 and playing solid defense; Kevin Overcash, a premier player in the NAIA and a draftee of the Yankees out of high school in center; and Eric Olexa who made this a dominating outfield in 2000. Third baseman, Jeff Wyatt, led the team in hitting, home runs, and RBIs. The newcomer, Blake Wilsford, completed the Bulldog team as shortstop. Wilsford was also drafted by the Yankees out of high school.

As the team looked forward to hosting the Region XI Tournament in their new stadium, they stived toward boasting a winning season.

Confident in her skills, Martha Koelein served up anothor sinker.

With the look of focus, Amber Mitchell prepared her body for the perfect bump.

With complete dedication, members of Kappa Delta showed outstanding unity with their bump, set, and spike methods.

Mountain Movers

Mary Mount

Does college seem like an endless series of quizzes and exams? Do you ever feel like if you spend one more minute sitting in your room you will go insane? Maybe you should get involved in one of the many organizations that are present here at Union. There are ministry teams, honor clubs, Greek organizations, Student Government Association and many, many others. Commitment to an organization like these might seem like a lot of time and effort spent in one specific area, but taking part is definitely not a waste of time. Not only does getting involved provide an outlet for making new friends and affecting the Union community, it also gives you an opportunity to expand your horizons and become a part of an exciting team. These groups truly are the mountain movers of the campus!

Chapel Choir

Chapel Choir was an audition-only group that was open to any major. Its primary purpose was to sing special music for Monday chapels. They also sang at select churches in the area that request them to sing for a service. Each semester they sang in a combined concert with the various musical organizations on campus.

The Baptist Student Nursing Fellowship was a non-denominational student-led organization devoted to uniting all nursing students in the common bond of Christ. The BSFN offered opportunities for ministry and fellowship through community involvement. They had a nursing home ministry and participated in nursing-orientated GO trips.

As a part of the nursing program, students volunteered their time to help give check-ups and treat minor problems for senior citizens.

These guys enjoyed watching one of the best seasons that the Union soccer team had seen in years.

Rutledge History Club

The Rutledge History Club was a group of students interested in cultivating the study of history. Membership was extended to history majors and minors and to a group of students who had finished three semester hours in history with an average of at least 3.0 while expressing an interest in the study of history.

MR. & MS.

The title of Ms. Union was given to Beth Chapman. Chapman is a senior from Paducah, Ky. majoring in political science. Her plans after graduation are still undecided. Chapman has been a member of Chi Omega for four years, and this year she serves as president. She has also been a member of FOCUS, CLU, vice president of SGA, and a LIFE group leader. Chapman has not only succeeded at Union socially, but she has also managed to maintain a 3.6 GPA, allowing her to be a member of the Alpha Chi Honor Society.

The title of Mr. Union went to Bryan Jerry. Jerry is a senior from Brighton, Tenn. majoring in Christian studies. After he graduates, Bryan plans to follow God's will in youth ministry after he graduates, and someday he plans to attend seminary. Jerry has been a member of Lambda Chi Alpha for four years, and this year he serves as vice president. He has also been a member of FCA, Disciple Now, and a LIFE group leader. Jerry was also on the baseball team for two years.

Money Makers

Mary Mount

What college student hasn't sat down and marveled at how money always seems to be running short? In high school you might have had a job to get extra money for dates, shopping, or saving for school, but now that you have reached the "real world," you have to buy your own food, pay for books, pay the rent for you dorm room, plus everything else. A job isn't just for the extras anymore! Sometimes even the most careful spenders stare at their empty wallets and exclaim, "Where did all my money go?" Union students have a variety of options when it comes to making money for all of those unexpected expenses. The campus offers a variety of workships and workstudies, but there are many off-campus jobs as well. But making money isn't just a special concern for students; that is why your yearbook presents you with this ad section.

You came into our life... and our life has a new meaning.

Trinity M. Gray

Trinity,

God made a special person when he made you and we are so proud of you. From your very first day of school until now, your last days at Union, you have always worked hard and given your best. Thank you for honoring us and your God that way.

We love you!!

We love you!! Dad & Mom

Congratulations, Ken Barker

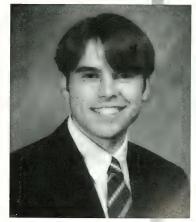

Dear Ken,

You captured our hearts with that first wonderful trademark smile -- and what joy you have brought into our lives as we have watched you grow. From the time you were little you have dreamed your dreams, set your goals, and moved forward with a strong sense of who you are.

We are so very proud of you, of all that you have accomplished, of your many achievements, of the little boy you were and the young man you have become. As you continue to follow your dreams and make them a reality, may God richly bless you in all that you do.

Our love and support always, Mama, Daddy, MeMaw, and Granddaddy

Phil. 3:12-14

Genie.

Your dad and I are very pleased with you. You have truly come so far in the past 4 1/2 years. I have watched as you grew into a responsible adult. There were times, I'm sure, you thought mom should be helping me! As you finally realized I was not financially able to help, it was during those times I saw you take control and act very responsibly.

You are a wonderful daughter. For long time I was worried about what kind of a daughter we had raised. You were very self-centered and selfish. Today I watch as you put others before yourself. That is a wonderful attribute. Continue to always serve the Lord and you cannot go wrong.

When I look back on your 22 years on this earth, what I remember most are the times you made me laugh over such silly things. Those were the good times! We had bad times too but they are quickly faded away.

We love you, Mom & Dad

THE RIGHTEOUS SHALL LIVE BY FAITH. Habakkuk 2:4b

Jonathan, the best is yet to come! You are an awesome brother and son! Congratulations on your accomplishments! God has used you in such a wonderful way to bless so many people! Our hope and prayer is that you continue to allow God to be the center of your life! We love you!

Love, Mother and David Eph. 3:20

YOU ARE A CARING PERSON; YOU ARE ADMIRED, LOVED AND RESPECTED FOR WHO YOU ARE.

LOVE AND CONGRATULATIONS,

Congratulations,

We are proud to be your family.

We love you!

John W. Sr., Paula, Sam, Luke & Bill

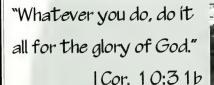

Congratulations Mary DeVan Hammond!!

You are truly a gift from the Lord and a very special blessing.

We are so proud of you!

Dad, Mom, Stephen and Matthew

You've come a long way baby!

You have been fearfully and wonderfully made inside and out. A treasure from the heart of God to our hearts.

Congratulations Christian Keren Kinney

MILENNIU

Union University has left its mark in many ways, from the student body to the community, and even in Heaven. Each aspect is very important.

The first is that Union did many things to prepare the student body for the new millennium. During the summer of 1999, there were people hard at work making sure every aspect of the campus would be ready to go when the clock struck midnight on Dec. 31.

The second was the work done in the community. This past year Union was no stranger to the community here in Jackson. Many students attended local churches and were involved teaching Sunday School, keeping nursery, or working in the youth ministry. Students were involved in area-wide mission opportunities as well as those that took them around the world.

Finally, many Union students have entered the ministry. They have taken what they have learned here at Union and used it to win souls for Jesus Christ. Union's way of integrating faith into the classroom every day is seen in Union's mission statement: "...to provide quality undergraduate and graduate education to students of qualified preparation in ways consistent with the following guiding principles: excellence-driven, Christ-centered, people-focused, and future-directed."

We'll always remember Union, whether the late night study sessions, hanging out with friends, or simply talking to professors about a problem. Our memories include good times and bad; triumphs and failures; stress and tranquility. All these memories lead us to proudly set out to make our Mark on the Millennium.

When the year began, many students were making adjustments. Since then lasting friendships were made here at Union, friendships that marked the way into a new millennium.
